ESSENTIAL FUNCTIONS/TYPICAL DUTIES:
The successful applicant will be initially responsible for teaching up to three classes in the Psychology Department in Fall 2015. This is a temporary faculty position, assigned as-needed on a quarterly basis, with no expectation of continued employment beyond the current appointment.

Adjunct Faculty teach on-campus and/or online, as dictated by program, course schedule, and enrollment demand. In addition, Faculty hold office hours and engage students actively in their own learning, including discussion, writing, and analysis; maintain consistent high standards regarding course content; provide students with timely feedback on their course work and examinations; are available and responsive to student questions; and adhere to program assessment practices. Position may be expected to participate in program curriculum development or assessment tasks.
Minimum Qualifications:
• Master's degree in Psychology
• Relevant teaching experience at the college level
• Ability to connect and build relationships with students and colleagues from varied ethnicities, ages, backgrounds, learning styles, and abilities
• Effective interpersonal, oral, and written communication skills

Preferred Qualifications:
• Familiarity with community college population
• Familiarity with e-learning systems (e.g., Blackboard, Canvas)
• Demonstrated knowledge and ability to engage students in active learning

How to Apply:
Please email the following to Tabitha Kirkland at tabitha.kirkland@bellevuecollege.edu:
1) a cover letter describing how you meet the qualifications described above
2) your curriculum vitae (CV) or résumé
3) statement of teaching philosophy (2 pages max)
4) unofficial academic transcript(s)

Applications will be reviewed as they are received. Any applications received after September 4, 2015 will be considered for employment in future quarters.
